

Applied Neuroscience Society of Australasia 2010 Annual Conference and workshops

Brain Health in the 21st Century:

Applied neuroscience making a difference in clinical practice with evidence-based brain therapies for PTSD & brain injury

* Featuring a 1-day international symposium on brain injury & post-concussion syndrome *

Neurotherapies and quantitative EEG/event-related potential diagnostics
Data interpretation and functional report writing
Hands-on skills training

The Applied Neuroscience Society of Australasia (ANSA) is a growing multidisciplinary community of dedicated neuroscientists, neuroscience practitioners and clinicians united in their passion for enhancing brain function. The main goal of our society is to bring advances from neuroscience into clinical practice. The ANSA annual conference is a unique event that brings together delegates from different disciplines of applied neuroscience – including psychiatry, neuropsychology, psychology, neurology, neuromodulation, neurotherapy, neurofeedback, biofeedback, nutrition, brain diagnostics and more!

International Multidisciplinary Symposium

Traumatic Brain Injury & Post-concussion Syndrome:

The unique contribution of applied neuroscience to diagnosis, assessment and remediation

ANSA will bring together various stakeholders as a think tank to share understanding and to build partnerships across sectors such as health, education, welfare, justice, rehabilitation, and employment.

We aim to establish a working group to develop Australian guidelines for the treatment of traumatic brain injury that draw on the evidence of neurophysiological research and applied neuroscience.
